Islamic University Day to be celebrated today

IU Correspondent . Kushtia | Published at 12:11am on November 22, 2019

Islamic University will celebrate its 41st founding anniversary on the campus in Kushtia on Friday in a befitting manner.

The university authorities had chalked out elaborated programmes, including procession, discussion and cultural session, to mark the day, Rajibul Islam Kanok, deputy director of IU Information, publication and public relations office, said on Thursday.

The teachers, students, officers and employees of the university would bring out a colourful procession from the university's administrative building in the morning.

The procession would end at Birshrestha Hamidur Rahman Auditorium after parading main roads of the campus.

Later, a discussion and cultural programme would be held there, he added.

National flag and the university flag will be hoisted atop the administrative building and all dormitories in the morning.

The university started its journey on November 22 in 1979 at Gazipur on a campus presently used by the National University.
