BUET decides not to abolish class tests

The Academic Council of Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology (BUET) decided yesterday, not to change the present examination system of the university, reports BSS.

In an emergency meeting, the Academic Council adopted a seven-point regulation on the class tests what the council underlined as a regular part of the examination system meant to help the students.

Earlier, the BUET authorities warned that they would not compromise with any illegal demand of the students.
