

Nominations of women candidates

In the context of the election of 30 women members to the parliament we earnestly hope that ladies with high academic qualifications, social background and having a clean record of socio-political services should be nominated by the political parties.

We feel that the Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP) should be particularly careful in selecting its women nominees in this regard. Because of the fact that nominees of BNP have better chances of being elected to the Parliament.

In this connection I would like to mention that the Government of President Ziaur Rahman has already taken a number of steps including the increasing of women seats of the parliament from 14 to 30. These have earned wide appreciation from all sections of women of the country.

Parliament being the supreme legislative body of the country we feel that only ladies who would be capable of participating in its deliberations because of their educational qualifications and other accomplishments should be elected to it. Women of the country will definitely be proud of their representatives in House.

We strongly feel that women with strong integrity should be given preference by all means in matters of nominations to the parliamentary elections.

Thanking you.
