

Student falls from Eden College bldg, hurt

By Staff Correspondent

A student of Eden University College was critically injured when she fell from a college building yesterday afternoon.

The student was identified as Tahera Akter Munira, 24, an MA final year student of Psychology department, police and hospital sources said. She is now under treatment at the Suhrawardi Hospital.

Police, however, could not confirm whether it was an attempt to commit suicide or just an accident. But they said there was a piece of paper in her hand and her address was written on it.

Police and hospital sources said Munira, who resided with her sister at Paikpara in Mirpur, came to the college to attend classes in the morning. Before the incident, she was chatting with her friends for some time.

Teachers and students of the college rushed to the spot and took her to Dhaka Medical College Hospital. Munira suffered fractures in her left leg, neck and waist, according to hospital sources. Later, she was shifted to Suhrawardi Hospital.
