

25 OCT 1988

2726

Readers' Forum

CHANGE IN THE EXAMINATION SYSTEM

The success of a system depends on the executives and its operators. We are going to change the system unable to check the voluminous, unabated and ever increasing corruptions. Here the system is failing due to the mischievous activities of the few undesirable teachers acting as invigilators and identifiers. No unfair means can go on in the centre if the head of the centre is right and if he is not a party to the work of negative elements.

In view of the private tuitions and also of secret contract of passing undesirable students in the Examinations; the presence of teachers in the centre is invariably to cause unfair means in the centre. Subject teachers immediately after the distribution of question papers become engaged in preparing answers to the questions and they are cyclostyled and distributed to the contracted students through the teacher invigilators. So any change in the nature of questions, essay or objective type, will not help us materially in checking corruption at all in the examination centres.

The authorities may appoint Superintendents and invigilators from among Professors and the teachers of Government Colleges and Non-Govt. Schools from outside.

Necessity knows no law.

WALI ULLAH PATWARY
Retired Head Master
Matlab High School.