Female students protest change of exam centre

SHERPUR, Nov 17:—More than a hundred female degree examinees of Sherpur Government College went on rampage on the campus and locked the class rooms today protesting shifting of their examination centre, reports UNB.

The examination centre for the female students has been shifted to Sherpur Government Women's College.

Witnesses said the angry female students pulled out the teachers, students from the class rooms and locked those in the morning. They also damaged more than 50 tables and benches.

They later held a rally on the campus and threatened to launch a movement if the decision is not reversed.

The boy students ousted from the classes later assembled and brought out a procession on the campus to protest the action of female students.

The degree examination, 1999, under the National University is scheduled to begin on November
