KHULNA University has decided to introduce law faculty and a new subject under arts faculty from the 2016-2017 academic session, adding 92 more seats to accommodate more students.

The decision was taken on Tuesday at a meeting of the KU central admission committee with its vice-chancellor Prof Mohammed Fayequzzaman in the chair, said its public relations officer Atiar Rahman.

He said the committee has decided to increase 40 seats in the new law and justice department and 40 more in the new History and Civilisation department.

Besides, it decided to add 10 seats - five each in Architecture and Mathematics department, and two in Urban and Rural Planning department.

With the increase of the new 92 seats, the total number of KU seats will stand at 1210 under 28 disciplines.
